FANTASY TRENDS FOR 2014

A lot can happen in the off-season. Players change teams, teams change head coaches, and a new crop of talented rookies enters the league. Knowing which players are rising, falling, overlooked, and overrated is key to winning a fantasy football league... so, Get the Edge!

RISING:

Old, less-than-mobile QBs

In 2013, 37-year-old Peyton Manning tore up the NFL's offensive record books with 55 TD passes. Second to him (with 39): 34-year-old Drew Brees. At 31, Philip Rivers was suddenly elite again, and despite losing a lot of receiving talent, Tom Brady was still Tom Brady. Bottom line: don't overlook the over-30 quarterbacks.

DECLINING:

Young, running starting QBs

Only a couple seasons ago, NFL squads and fantasy owners were literally scrambling for Michael Vick types at QB: fast, athletic guys who can pile up rush yardage on top of passing numbers. Now, that trend seems to be fading fast. Robert Griffin III got hurt last season, Tim Tebow didn't pan out, and multiple highly-touted, mobile young passers fell flat (including Christian Ponder and several others). Colin Kaepernick is still a threat to run, but the 49ers seem to be expecting him to pass more in '14.

RISING:

Multi-purpose players

Despite the trend of running QB's seeming to wane, multi-purpose fantasy producers at other positions are becoming more frequent. NFL teams are generally letting nifty, speedy tailbacks catch the football more (such as Giovani Bernard, Darren Sproles, Danny Woodhead, Dexter McCluster, and rookie Dri Archer), and last season a fullback-tight end hybrid (Charles Clay) became one of Miami's top offensive options. Keep an eye out for multi-position producers.

DECLINING:

True featured RBs

The NFL is as pass-heavy as ever, and that has contributed to fewer go-to workhorse running backs. To wit: in 2012, five running backs posted 300-plus rushing attempts. Last season only two--LeSean McCoy and Marshawn Lynch--managed 300. The increase in the running backs-as-receivers trend is also a factor. Fantasy-wise, focus on teams with one clear featured back; they can provide a real edge.

RISING:

Super-athletic, jumbo-sized TEs

A good argument can be made that Jimmy Graham of the Saints is now the most valuable fantasy receiver in most leagues. And Cleveland's Jordan Cameron could push Graham this season for that honor (especially considering what Josh Gordon did for the Browns last year). The trend is clear: NFL teams are moving increasingly toward featuring huge, athletic Rob Gronkowski-type pass-catchers in their game-plans. Don't overlook them.

Must-have players

1. Drew Brees, QB, Saints. No fantasy option is as consistently dominant year-to-year as Brees.
2. Jamaal Charles, RB, Chiefs. Without much in-team competition, explosive Charles is a must-have.
3. Calvin Johnson, WR, Lions. Megatron has the occasional injury issue but otherwise is prolific.
4. Demaryius Thomas, WR, Broncos. He just gets better every year, and playing with Peyton helps.
5. Jimmy Graham, TE, Saints. On the rare Sunday he gets shut down, but overall is without peer.

Bryant

Shifting up

1. Nick Foles, QB, Eagles. Last season was a revelation and Foles will get better under Chip Kelly.
2. DeMarco Murray, RB, Cowboys. Durability is a concern but when healthy, Murray is an elite.
3. Dez Bryant, WR, Cowboys. Is this the year he becomes a consistently dominant star? Probably.
4. Torrey Smith, WR, Ravens. The Ravens have offensive issues but don't expect Smith to be one.
5. Julius Thomas, TE, Broncos. His size and athleticism are helping Peyton Manning stay young.

Knowing the top players in the game is key in fantasy football, but even more important is knowing the players on the verge of getting there.

2014

Who to watch? Among others: Manziel, Ellington, Watkins, Gronkowski.

Primed to break out

1. Ryan Tannehill, QB, Dolphins. His supporting cast is iffy but Tannehill has real star potential.
2. Andre Ellington, RB, Cardinals. Don't underrate the explosive, shifty Ellington; he can be great.
3. Tavon Austin, WR, Rams. Austin should be far more comfortable now with a year under his belt.
4. Cordarrelle Patterson, WR, Vikings. Minny's QB situation hurts but Patterson should still rise.
5. Charles Clay, TE/FB, Dolphins. Very quietly last season, Clay led Miami in reception TD's (6).

Bouncing back

1. Robert Griffin III, QB, Redskins. With health back and a new head coach, Griffin should be fine.
2. Arian Foster, RB, Texans. Having Ryan Fitzpatrick around taking pressure off should help Foster.
3. Julio Jones, WR, Falcons. With his foot injury behind him Jones should resume his elite production.
4. Percy Harvin, WR, Seahawks. A hip injury limited Harvin significantly in '13 but he's still young.
5. Rob Gronkowski, TE, Patriots. Gronk's physical style makes him risky but he appears healthy now.

Rookies to watch

1. Johnny Manziel, QB, Browns. Brian Hoyer is Cleveland's starter but Johnny Football will push him.
2. Bishop Sankey, RB, Titans. Most reports suggest Sankey will be the clear lead back for Tennessee.
3. Sammy Watkins, WR, Bills. Buffalo made a huge effort to land Watkins, a go-to guy right away.
4. Brandin Cooks, WR, Saints. Few rookies in recent memory have Cooks' explosive big-play tools.
5. Richard Rodgers, TE, Packers. It looks like big Rodgers can start for the great-passing Packers.

Buyer beware

1. Colin Kaepernick, QB, 49ers. His running is a nice bonus but Kaepernick doesn't pass enough.
2. Ray Rice, RB, Ravens. Last season's drop-off and his 2-game suspension make Rice avoidable.
3. Andre Johnson, WR, Texans. Advancing age and reports of his unhappiness are red flags.
4. Anquan Boldin, WR, 49ers. While dependable he's aging, and San Fran's offense is crowded.
5. Heath Miller, TE, Steelers. With several younger options around him, Miller may be odd man out.

Later-round gems

1. Ryan Fitzpatrick, QB, Texans. As Houston's new No. 1, the mobile Fitzpatrick should be very solid.
2. LeGarrette Blount, RB, Steelers. Pittsburgh's backfield is crowded but Blount can be the goal-liner.
3. Brian Hartline, WR, Dolphins. He gets overlooked but has posted two straight 1,000-yard seasons.
4. Robert Woods, WR, Bills. The Buffalo QB situation is a worry but Woods can be a nice go-to guy.
5. Garrett Graham, TE, Texans. Houston's new coaching staff should open things up for Graham.

We wouldn't draft

1. Matt Schaub, QB, Raiders. Even if Schaub somehow rebounds, the Raiders will mostly run the ball.
2. Mark Ingram, RB, Saints. New Orleans remains a pass-first offense with a still-crowded backfield.
3. Nate Burleson, WR, Browns. At 32 the solid Burleson is aging, and he's been injury-prone awhile.
4. Brandon Myers, TE, Buccaneers. Forget his strong 2012; Myers may struggle to see targets in '14.
5. Brandon Pettigrew, TE, Lions. Now much more a blocker than receiver, he's one to avoid in drafts.

G. Smith

Sleepers

1. Geno Smith, QB, Jets. Assuming he can hold off Michael Vick, Smith should progress well in 2014.
2. Ahmad Bradshaw, RB, Colts. Trent Richardson has struggled and Vick Ballard is out for the season.
3. Justin Hunter, WR, Titans. Jake Locker's progress is a wild card but Hunter is nonetheless a talent.
4. Kenny Stills, WR, Saints. He was solid as a rookie last season and Stills has Drew Brees as his QB.
5. Levine Toilolo, TE, Falcons. Tony Gonzalez retired, leaving Toilolo as the top TE in pass-happy ATL.
